TABLETS HELP SENIORS CONNECT

These days, internet connectivity is considered a basic necessity, and for senior citizens, it can be a major source of protection against social isolation. Up to 90% of seniors have an internet connection through a home desktop or laptop computer according to Pew Research Center. If you are a senior who would like to connect to your family and friends online, consider beginning with a tablet such as an iPad Mini, The GrandPad, an Amazon Fire or a Samsung tablet. Tablets are ideal devices for people of almost any age or ability level. Some features help the hearing and visually impaired such as the ability to talk to the device, increase the letter sizes on the screen for reading and large icons to navigate easily. Tablets are usually less expensive than computers. Seniors with a tablet have access to email, video chats, searching the world wide web, browsing social media, reading books, listening to music and much more. NEMR Telecom cannot tell you which tablet to buy but we can set you up with internet and connect your device to the wireless network. You are never too old to learn a new trick. Give us a call and let us help you get you connected today.
